Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 15 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Fine and warm for many, wetter in northwest UK.

Today:
Cloud in southeast England should thin, leaving much of England and Wales quite sunny and warm. Northern Ireland and Scotland cooler and turning cloudier, with rain and strong winds reaching some northwestern parts.

Tonight:
Rain in western Scotland easing and sinking south, clearer weather following but with scattered showers across far northwest where remaining windy. Fine and warm across most SE areas of UK.

Wednesday:
Outbreaks of rain and coastal fog northern and western England and Wales. Sunny spells elsewhere, with isolated showers in northwest. Very warm across southern UK with thunderstorms likely later.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Sunny spells and a few showers affecting Northern Ireland and Scotland. Areas of thunderstorms likely to affect parts of England and Wales at times with temperatures returning to nearer normal.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.